In the rising of the sun and its going down,
we remember you.

In the blowing of the wind and the chill of winter,
we remember you.

In the opening of buds and the rebirth of spring,
we remember you.

In the blueness of the sky and in the warmth of summer,
we remember you.

In the rustling of leaves and in the beauty of autumn,
we remember you.

When we are weary and in need of strength,
we remember you.

When we are lost and sick at heart,
we remember you.

When we have joys we yearn to share,
we remember you.

So long as we live, you too shall live, for you are a part of us, as we remember you.

Robert Brack

Resident of Newbury Court | September 8, 2021

From his obituary:

Robert Barker Brack, also known to many as Captain Bob and Grampa-Bobo, 83, of Concord, formerly of Natick, died suddenly on Wednesday, September 8, 2021. Bob was born in Newton on July 11, 1938 as the son of the late Robert and Evelyn (Barker) Brack.

After graduating from Natick High School in 1956, Bob continued his education at UMass Amherst where he earned a B.S. in Civil Engineering in 1960 and later completed his Master of Education at Northeastern University.

He married his high school sweetheart, the late Joan Haskell Brack, in June of 1960. Bob and Joan lived in Natick and had three children Virginia, Kenneth, and William. Tragically, Joan died in 1999 from ovarian cancer. Bob married his second wife, Janet Bailey in 2001. Bob leaves behind his three children: his daughter, Virginia Brack, her husband Clay Block, and their children, Maxwell Block and his wife Nicole Dayhoff and Samuel Block; and his two sons, Kenneth Brack, his wife Denise, their children, the late Michael Brack, Christopher Brack and his wife Megan, and Amanda Brack and her husband Andrew Lowrey; and William Brack, his wife Jessica Ladd, and their children, Benjamin and Isabel Brack. He was the adopted father of Eric Cooper and his daughter Kiara Mundy. Bob also leaves behind his second wife, Janet, and her two children; David Rossini, his wife Molly Chafetz, their children Eliza and Gabriel; and Katherine Dennis, her husband Joshua, and their children Thomas and Miles Dennis. He leaves his brother, Harold "Skip" Brack and his wife Judith Bradshaw-Brown, and his sister, Beverly Droz and her husband Thomas, as well as several nieces and nephews. Bob was also the brother-in-law of Steve Haskell, stepbrother-in-law of William Thompson and stepsister-in-law Lisa Pearson.

In 1960, Bob joined the family business, Barker Steel Company, as the third generation following his father Robert and his grandfather, Harold Barker, who founded the company in 1920. Bob left the steel business briefly in 1963 to teach material science for one year at Wentworth Institute of Technology, before returning to Barker Steel in 1964 to stay. Bob became CEO of the company in 1976 and under his leadership Barker Steel grew from a small one-shop company in Watertown, Massachusetts to having 17 locations in 11 states and more than 600 employees at its peak. Bob was shocked, but very proud when his son Bill joined Barker Steel in 1995 representing the fourth generation of family in the business. Under Bob's leadership, Barker Steel became one of the largest independent reinforcing steel fabricators in the United States and furnished reinforcing steel for concrete construction throughout New England, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. Barker Steel fabricated reinforcing steel for thousands of projects large and small, both public and private. Barker Steel fabricated the majority of the reinforcing steel for the "Big Dig" – the Central Artery/Third Harbor Tunnel (CA/T) project and helped rebuild New York City after 9/11, including furnishing the reinforcing steel for several of the World Trade projects and the Freedom Tower. Bob sold Barker Steel to Nucor/Harris Rebar in 2007 and he "formally" retired in 2012, never letting go of his lifelong passion for the rebar business. Through his compassionate leadership and caring ethos, Bob touched the lives of thousands of families over his 50-year career at Barker Steel.

Bob was a "lifelong member" of the Concrete Reinforcing Steel Institute (CRSI) serving as treasurer, executive board member and president of both the CRSI and the CRSI Education & Research Foundation. In 2012, Bob was awarded the first ever CRSI Distinguished Service Award which was prompted by Bob's career-long dedication to both the reinforced concrete industry and the CRSI. Bob also remained engaged with his alma mater, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, serving on the Civil and Environmental Engineering Advisory Committee and supporting the establishment of the Robert Brack Structural Testing Facility at Tilson, among other roles and activities.

Bob was passionate about actively engaging in and supporting the communities he lived in. While residing in Natick, Bob was a member of Eliot Church (including serving as church moderator), and actively served on the board of several local charities, including the Natick Community Organic Farm, Natick Service Council, and Foundation for MetroWest. Bob coached his sons in farm league baseball and later coached them in spring soccer and helped start the Natick Soccer Club in the mid-1970s. He enjoyed singing in the Eliot Church choir with his late wife Joan.

Bob also had an enduring love for and connection with Machiasport, Maine, where he and Joan bought property fronting Machias Bay. "Little Respite," a cottage built in 1981, became a treasured place of renewal for themselves and their family. In later years Bob worked closely with Maine Coast Heritage Trust in establishing a contiguous preserve to help protect the area's natural and archaeological resources.

After the tragic loss of his first wife Joan in 1999, Bob and his children Jinny, Ken, and Bill created the Joan H. Brack Charitable Foundation, with a focus to support ovarian cancer research and local community charities. Over the ensuing twenty years, Bob and the foundation provided support for numerous charities including the Dana Farber Cancer Institute; the Jimmy Fund Golf Program via the Joan H. Brack Charitable Golf Tournament; the Joan H. Brack Learning Center, a component of the South Middlesex Opportunity Council (SMOC) in Framingham; MetroWest Legal Services; Jewish Family Services of MetroWest; and Hope Floats Healing and Wellness Center, founded and run by his daughter-in-law Denise and his son Ken.

After moving to Concord in 2000 and marrying Janet in 2001, he joined First Parish with Janet and actively participated in many of the social justice and governance committees of that community as well as supporting additional local charities, including Family Promise MetroWest and Open Table. Bob was passionate about Open Table because it was started by The Women's Parish Association at First Parish and addressed the critical problem of hunger in the MetroWest region. Janet was President of the Women's Parish Association. Most recently Bob was a resident at Newbury Court in Concord where he had already made many friends and dinner companions.

Bob was always most at home on the sea, especially on Buzzards Bay. He was an avid sailor, sailing his 19-foot Corinthian, Embarker, for 54 years with his family and friends and participating in the Marion to Bermuda sailboat race several times. Bob loved swimming in Wareham (Parkwood Beach) and later Mattapoissett and was known for his world class freestyle backstroke. He enjoyed puzzles of all types, especially jigsaw and Sudoku. Perhaps most of all, Bob loved his grandchildren. He was their number one cheerleader, particularly in soccer, and was known for driving hours to see a game. He was very fond of having ice cream with them in the summer –in fact he was very fond of ice cream in general. Bob loved music of all genres, especially dramatic classical music such as Beethoven, Brahms, Mahler and Wagner. Bob was an avid runner and regularly participated in the annual Mattapoissett Road Race together with his children and grandchildren until 2013 when his grandchildren started beating his time and he retired his bib with a grin.

My Mom believed in social justice. My Mom had a strong sense of service. I miss her laugh. I miss calling her on the phone. I miss bragging to her about my child, her youngest granddaughter. I miss having to repeat myself louder because she misunderstood me. I miss Newbury Court. She was at home living at Newbury Court. I miss the friends she shared with me when I came from California to stay with her. I miss playing Rummikub. I miss the friendly servers in the dining chapel who knew her so well. It was understood that we would order everything we were entitled to at each meal! My adult friendship with Mom blossomed while she was living at Newbury Court. I am so grateful for the love and care she received there. I know she is happy on the other side of the veil. I love her and many, many, years from now, I know I will see her again.

Janet became an active and important part of the Newbury Court community after moving in in 2001. She features prominently in many photos from celebrations over the years—from Fourth of July gatherings to choir rehearsals and Chamberlin Apartment get-togethers!

Donald MacKenzie

Resident of Newbury Court & Rivercrest | September 24, 2021

From his obituary:

Donald MacKenzie III, known to friends and business associates as “Don,” “Poppi” to his grandkids, and “Mr. Moderator” to Acton residents, was born in Portland Maine on September 23, 1936. He died on September 24, 2021, one day after his 85th birthday, at the Rivercrest Nursing Home, part of Newbury Court in Concord, where he and Pat moved after 52 years in Acton. His parents were Donald MacKenzie II and Catherine Braithwaite MacKenzie, both deceased. He has a younger brother, Neil, of Oldsmar, Florida.

He was married for 61 years to the former Patricia Pennal, whom he met at Needham High School, and then both attended Brown University. Don majored in political Science, which was a life-long interest of his. In 1992 he was awarded the Distinguished Career Award from Needham H.S., one of 10 alumni receiving this honor.

When he was 15 years old, he survived radical new open-heart surgery at Children’s Hospital by the pioneer of pediatric cardiac surgery, Dr. Robert Gross.

After Brown he worked briefly for Mobil Oil Co., and then joined New England Tel, which began his career with the Telephone industry. He was Managing Director, Business, then AT&T in marketing and regulatory departments; he held senior management positions at several Bell system companies and was Chairman and CEO of NYNEX Information Resources. When the Iron Curtain went down, he traveled to Prague in the Czech Republic and started the Yellow Pages there, serving as Chairman of Mediatel Co. During his last two years before retirement, he was president of The Telephone Pioneers of America, the volunteer association of the Bell system which donated over 4 million hours of volunteer time annually. He loved this job and the opportunity to meet many of the 900,000 volunteers nation-wide. After retirement, he began a Charitable Foundation Fund, raising money to help Pioneers answer the call of those in need. Over $1.2 million have been distributed to volunteers projects in the US and Canada.

Don was a believer in community service and was on boards of many institutions: Boston Urban Ministries, which interacted with and mentored former and present gang members; Acton Library foundation, The Discovery Museum, St. Matthew's Methodist Church, Emerson Hospital, Newbury Court for 12 years, and others.

His true love was being Moderator of the town of Acton for 40 years, making him the longest serving Moderator in the town's history and one of the longest in the state. He was known for his calm demeanor, good sense of civility and order, and probably most important, his keen sense of humor, which often diffused contentious situations. He consistently refused a raise in his $20 a night session saying it would take away one of his best lines! He also was president of the Mass Moderators Association.

Don was an avid tennis player and golfer, enjoyed the Concord Country Club and when he was president, presided over restoration of the beautiful Donald Ross course.

Above all, Don had that wonderful smile. He was loyal, fair and balanced, honest, a true gentleman, inclusive, kind, generous to all with his time and focus, very funny and able to tell wonderful stories in authentic accents, and devoted to his family and friends, who miss him terribly.

He leaves his wife, Pat; son Brad, his wife Kristen and son Christopher; daughter Kristen, husband Sam, children Graham and Clara; brother Neil, wife Nancy, daughters Donna and Lisa and their families.

Joan Nordell

Resident of Newbury Court | October 2, 2021

From her obituary:

A testament to the enduring friendships Joan Nordell developed as a long time supporter of the arts in the Boston area, she was surrounded by friends and colleagues during the last days of her life, including a distinguished artist, patrons of a classical music society, and a well known jazz musician serenading her with his saxophone.

Joan Projansky Nordell passed away peacefully on October 2 at Newbury Court in Concord, MA where she resided for the past eight years. Her husband of 62 years, H. Roderick Nordell, died in 2017. She was born in Rochester, NY on November 23, 1927 to Henri and Bessie Projansky. Joan was predeceased by her sister and brother-in-law, Sonia and Lew Johnson of Medina, WA.

She cultivated many special friendships at Newbury Court, where she was known for her acts of kindness. Joan also opened her home of 50 years in Cambridge, MA to students from around the country and world, many of whom became devoted friends. She hosted first class jam sessions for jazz musicians in her house. Her husband played drums.

After graduating from Radcliffe College, she spent much of her career in development, fundraising for the Harvard University libraries. She took a personal interest in rare books and created her own collection of livre d'artistes (book art). The walls of her apartment were covered with art collected over a lifetime, most of the purchases in support of new and up and coming artists.

Joan also served on the board of numerous art and music institutions, including Emmanuel Music and the Boston Athenaeum. The Joan Nordell Fellowship Fund at Houghton Library was started in her honor and has already sponsored 47 scholars in a wide range of studies.

Joan is survived by three children, Eric (married to Anne), John (married to Betsy) and Elizabeth (married to Rudy) along with four grandchildren, Ella, Meredith, Popo and Andrew. She went out of her way to support her children and grandchildren in the diverse endeavors they have pursued.

Mom's indomitable, generous, dignified, enthusiastic, persistent, playful, intellectual, concerned, demanding, artistic, critical, compassionate, resilient, comforting, spontaneous, supportive, curious, fun and loving spirit endowed her with the remarkable ability to grow anything, grow anyone. She found out what people, plants and organizations liked, needed, wanted; and offered sunshine, water, support, possibilities and some good sh...compost. She curated common roots, encouraged open-mindedness - allowing connections to be made and horizons to be broadened.

On this day of remembering, mom would not have forgotten a thing - mom would be tickled for the honor, but would not want any fuss or sadness. She would want to know how the inmates are doing and hope that you are well. She would be a buzz with the Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson confirmation hearing - isn't she wonderful?! Isn't she brilliant?! She would seek out the experts among you to try to understand the endgame of the egregious invasion on her parents homeland, while simultaneously bringing all she had gleaned from her news sources to the conversation; probingly and with curiosity - with a side of the devil's advocate. She would remark on the dappled light, the smashing color of a blouse, tie or flowers - and oh, how well everyone looked.

On behalf of our family, I thank you for the friendship, care, camaraderie and love you have shown our mom - and us, too. Please know that her heart is full with you, as is ours. With hugs and kisses to all of you, Love Always! Love More! Have Fun! Ta-Da!

From The Harvard Library Bulletin, in memoriam:

The staff of Houghton Library was saddened to learn that Joan Nordell of Concord, formerly of Cambridge, passed away on Saturday, October 2, 2021. With Joan's death, both Houghton Library and Harvard Library have lost one of their most loyal supporters.

An alumna of Radcliffe College, Joan received an AB in 1949 and graduated from its Management Training Program in 1950, the same year she became Radcliffe's Director of Publicity. Joan joined Harvard Library to provide administrative support during the construction of Pusey Library in the early 1970s, beginning an association that would last for the next 25 years. In her role as Assistant to the Director for External Affairs in the Harvard University Library, Joan revitalized the Friends of the Harvard College Library, enlarging its membership, maintaining its calendar, and hosting memorable library events on its behalf. Her work with donors, in Cambridge and elsewhere, led to the creation of numerous named book endowments in use today throughout the library. With uncommon grace and tact, Joan deftly managed major capital campaigns to benefit Houghton Library as it celebrated its 40th (1982) and 50th (1992) anniversaries; for the latter, she was named External Affairs Officer for Houghton Library.

In 1981 Joan and her husband, H. Roderick Nordell (1925–2017), an executive editor and longtime jazz and theater critic for the Christian Science Monitor, endowed the Nordell Family Book Fund for use at the Harvard Fine Arts Library. In her honor, library benefactor Melvin R. Seiden, Harvard Class of 1952, established the Joan and Roderick Nordell Fund (1990) to support new acquisitions in the Harvard Theatre Collection. Her devoted friends endowed the Joan Nordell Fellowship Fund (1991) to provide financial support to scholars in all disciplines conducting research at Houghton. To date, the library has hosted 47 Nordell fellows, many of whom Joan greeted warmly in person to learn more about their projects.

After her retirement in 1993, Joan remained a vital presence in the life of the library. In 1996 she curated “The New Storytellers,” a landmark exhibition of one-of-a-kind artists’ books held in Boston-area libraries and museums. In 2006, she published an article in Harvard Library Bulletin that traced her effort to locate the ten privately printed copies of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow’s 1865 translation of Dante’s Inferno. Joan and Rod regularly attended library-sponsored lectures, concerts, and exhibition openings, and looked forward to seeing old friends and—as importantly—making new ones. For many of us, it will be difficult to imagine a Harvard Library event without seeing Joan seated in the front row.

From Emmanuel Music:

Joan Nordell was President of Emmanuel Music from 2003 to 2010, leading the organization through times of unprecedented challenge and change. Joan was a force of nature indefatigable in her energetic devotion to doing whatever it took to bring Emmanuel Music to new successes. Everyone who worked with Joan knew that she was unflagging and unstoppable.

She always expected others to show the same drive to make changes happen quickly, and of course no one could keep up with her. But Joan never stopped pushing for change, never left a stone unturned or a small detail overlooked, and left Emmanuel Music stronger and better. Everyone in the organization felt the power of Joan’s energy and her unwavering commitment to the mission, the work, and the people of Emmanuel Music.

Under Joan’s leadership, Emmanuel Music became a more mature and solid organization. She expanded and professionalized the board and created the first committees: Finance, Marketing, Nominating, and Community Connections (outreach). Joan also presided over the transition from long-time Executive Director Lenny Matczynski to the hiring of Pat Krol, an exceptional leader over 15 years until this past August 2021. Joan's list of personal contacts was extraordinary, and she brought many new people into the audience and among the ensemble's significant donors. Joan respected and strengthened the relationship between Emmanuel Music and Emmanuel Church, steering it through troubled waters that few today could imagine. With each change from old ways and long-time personnel, Joan treasured and retained the best of Emmanuel Music's traditions as she helped the organization grow and stabilize.

No transition was more fraught than that after the death of founder Craig Smith in November 2007. When John Harbison stepped in for almost three years as Acting Artistic Director, Joan, Pat, and newly hired Priest-in-Charge, Pam Werntz, led a complex and difficult process to find a successor able to lead this unique and venerable organization. Joan formed a committee with stakeholders representing Emmanuel Music, Emmanuel Church, and the musicians, which painstakingly created a job description that encompassed all those perspectives and needs. Although some feared that Emmanuel Music could not continue and thrive without its founder, Joan, John, Pat, and Pam kept the faith. Joan's calm determination boosted the confidence of all. And she was right: the process ended with the successful hiring of Ryan Turner, now in his 12th season.

From the outset, Joan helped Emmanuel Music reach new artistic heights, thanks to being a tough and pragmatic foil to Craig Smith's visionary dreamer. In 2006, when Craig passionately wanted to perform the three Handel operas based on Ariosto's Orlando Furioso, he was proposing a pie-in-the-sky project with a cost sufficiently astronomical to make the board uncomfortable. But Joan understood what the project meant to Craig and to the organization, and so Craig's vision became her mission. She rallied the board and the donors and gave the go-ahead only after raising enough money to be certain that the rest would follow. Performed to acclaim in the spring of 2007, just months before Craig's death, these operas became the crowning achievement of his career.

John Harbison, now Principal Guest Conductor, captures the essence of Joan's style and her legacy: "Her manner of following through had a tough realistic tone which ultimately brought everyone, including the Music Directors, to a realization that we still had new levels to reach." Our achievements today rest on the foundation Joan established.

George Wiltsee

Resident of Newbury Court | October 3, 2021

From his obituary:

George A. Wiltsee, age 98, of Newbury Court, Concord, MA, passed away October 3, 2021. He was survived by his wife of thirty-five years, Jean Baird; his sons George Jr., and Christopher; stepchildren Katherine Duffy, Beth Holechek, Kevin Haney, and Sanda Twaalfhoven; three grandsons; three great-grandchildren; six step-granchildren and four step-great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his first wife, Anne Tepas Wiltsee, his daughter Elizabeth, and his sister, Joan (Wiltsee) Lloyd.

Mr. Wiltsee was born in Portsmouth, Ohio, the son of Raymond B. and Margaret A. Wiltsee. He was educated in the public schools of Portsmouth. He was president of his freshman class, managing editor of the school newspaper, president of the French Club and the Latin Club, elected to the National Honor Society, and was first in his class academically. Mr. Wiltsee was first in a state-wide chemistry exam and was awarded the Bausch and Lomb honorary science award. Mr. Wiltsee was admitted to Yale University in 1940, where he studied industrial administration. A resident of Berkeley College, he was also a member of York Hall fraternity (treasurer), manager of crew, and elected to Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma XI, and Tau Beta Pi honorary societies. As a result of WWII, his class was accelerated and he was awarded his B.S., with honors, in June 1943.

Mr. Wiltsee was drafted into the U.S. Army in July 1943 and sent for training as intelligence sergeant in a newly formed anti-aircraft battalion. The battalion passed its proficiency tests in March 1944, and at that point the war had progressed to the point that infantry was more in demand than anti-aircraft, so the entire battalion was transferred to Texas for infantry basic training. After completing the training, Mr. Wiltsee was sent to specialized schools for infantry intelligence work. In December 1944, he was sent to Europe where he became intelligence sergeant of the First Battalion, 346th Regiment, 87th Division, part of Patton's Third Army, at that time in Luxembourg. The division participated in the Battle of the Bulge, the assault crossing of the Rhine, and the march across Germany, finding itself on the border of Czechoslovakia at the time of the German surrender.

In March 1946, Mr. Wiltsee was discharged from the Army, and entered the MBA program at Harvard Business School. He received his MBA in November 1947 and joined the Procter & Gamble company in the manufacturing headquarters in

Cincinnati, Ohio. In 1952 after five years of training at headquarters and in the Cincinnati factories in P&G's complex industrial engineering program, he was transferred to Manila, Philippines, to establish the industrial engineering function in what was at that time P&G's largest overseas factory. After its completion, he became operations manager of the factory, and in 1961 he was transferred to Geneva, Switzerland to join a small group engaged in managing P&G business in developing countries mostly in Africa and the Middle East, where he oversaw manufacturing partners in such countries as Greece, Iran, Libya, Morocco, and Portugal. In 1964, he moved to Caracas, Venezuela to become director of manufacturing and product development of P&G Venezuela.

In 1968, Mr. Wiltsee resigned from P&G and joined the administrative staff of the Harvard Business School. Over the next 23 years he was primarily involved with the development and operation of the school's rapidly growing stable of executive education programs, as well as alumni affairs and corporate relations. He retired from HBS in 1991. During the last few years of his HBS career, and continuing long into his retirement, he and Jean traveled extensively, visiting businesses in Europe and the Far East, visiting their daughters and the growing families in England and The Netherlands, and enjoying trips sponsored by Harvard, Yale, and Stanford's alumni all over the world. In 1992, and again in 1994, they were asked by the International Executive Service Corps to go to Russia to advise management centers in transitioning from "socialist economics" to "market economics."

Throughout his adult life, he enjoyed golf, and calculated that he played 69 different courses, 23 of them outside the USA. Mr. Wiltsee was a member of the Trinity Episcopal Church, Concord. He was also a member of the Harvard Club in Concord, the Harvard Club of New York City, Harvard and Yale clubs in Tucson, AZ, and the Holland Society of New York. He was a longtime corporator of Emerson Hospital and for 13 years volunteered in "transport" at the hospital. A member of the board of the New England Deaconess Association, he resigned from the board when he and Jean became residents of Newbury Court in 2001, to avoid a conflict of interest.

From an interview with Dick Krug, Director of Veteran Services for the town of Concord, as part of a 1998 book entitled “Memories of World War II”:

When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941, I was in my second year of college. It had not occurred to me to join ROTC in my first year, so I, like most of my classmates, began to apply for various alternatives to the draft. (One of my friends joined the Marines right after Christmas and was killed in Guadalcanal in 1942.) My eyes were not up to the standards of the Navy or the Air Force, and I ended up volunteering for the draft in the spring of 1943. Because we had gone to school through the summer of 1942, by May of 1943 I had completed the first half of senior year, and Yale said that was enough — I would get my degree.

I entered the Army in Fort Thomas, Kentucky, across from Cincinnati and was soon shipped to Camp Haan, near Riverside, California, to be a member of a new anti-aircraft battalion that was being formed. We spent that summer, fall, and winter training there and in Camp Irwin, out in the desert near Barstow. It was good duty, because we could get into Los Angeles on weekends; in addition to which, it had been decided that I would be assigned the position of Intelligence Sergeant, and that meant that I didn't have to work KP and latrine cleanup.

In the spring of 1944, when we had finished our training, and the battalion had been qualified for duty, the Army decided that it did not need any more anti-aircraft. We were all shipped to a miserable little camp in Texas, on the Oklahoma border, to be converted to infantry. This meant that we had to learn to be real soldiers, and it was hard work — plus it was hot in the summer in Texas, the chiggers were fierce, and Dallas sure wasn't Los Angeles. At the end of our training, we were sent to Ford Ord, California, near Monterey, to be shipped to the Pacific Theatre.

In our first week at Fort Ord, we did a training exercise in the hills, and I came down with a severe case of poison oak. It was so bad that I had to spend three weeks in the base hospital. While I was in the hospital, my group was shipped out. When I returned to duty, the powers that be looked at my Military Occupational Specialty, i.e., the job I had qualified for, and opined that I was an Intelligence Sergeant in the anti-aircraft, but in the infantry, and that I needed further training. So I was sent to Fort McClellan, South Carolina, near Spartanburg, where the intelligence school did take me in after a few weeks. That training lasted about six weeks and was mostly map reading, as I remember it. Now I was prepared to go!

I was shipped to Fort Meade, Maryland, then on to England. We landed in Cardiff, took a train to Portsmouth, England, then a small Polish ship to Le Havre. From there, a train consisting of box cars took us to Nancy, then to Metz. After two days in a fort in Metz, a truck came and took me to a little village in Luxemburg not far from the town of Wasserbillig, on the Moselle across from the German city of Trier — a lovely place that Jean and I have visited several times in the past few years. I got out of that truck in the middle of the night and found that I was now in the Intelligence NCO of the First Battalion, 346th Infantry Regiment, 87th Division, assigned to Patton's 3rd Army, with a squad of four to five guys. It was early January, 1945, and the Battle of the Bulge was in its final stages.

For a few days we maintained an observation post in a big church in Wasserbillig. Then we moved by truck up through the town of Wiltz, Luxemburg, from which according to some legend my family gets its name, and then mostly by foot through Houffalize, Bastogne, and on to St. 1 2 Vith, where the Bulge has begun and where it now ended. A few miles east of St. Vith we ran up against German border fortifications known as the Siegfried Line. There we sat for about three weeks getting shot at until we moved through the Line and onto the Rhine. Our division crossed the Moselle upstream from Coblenz, liberated the city after some difficult fighting, (and also liberated some good Moselle wine), and on March twenty-sixth we crossed the Rhine in landing craft at Boppard, south of Coblenz. We have been back to Boppard quite a few times now — it is a nice city, and on the river bank there is a viewing platform called the "Lorelei Blick," as the legendary Lorelei is just a short distance up river from there. Needless to say, on that morning of the twenty-sixth, with all the noise, the smoke generators, and some shelling, we were not aware of what are now important tourists' sites.

From our time near Wasserbillig until after we crossed the Rhine, we were almost continuously in contact with the enemy, and this was the toughest time of the War for me. My squad and I found ourselves looking straight down the barrel of a German tank one day, and fortunately he missed. My closest call came when we were moving out one night and one of our vehicles hit a mine within a few feet of me. I was blown some distance, lost my rifle and helmet, and had a hell of a headache for a few days but was luckier than some of my buddies who were closer to the mine. Generally during this period our squad set up observation posts whenever we could, we did some scouting, and we helped the long-range artillery observers identify targets. This all subjected us to frequent mortar and artillery fire, and one of my squad was right next to me one day when he was hit in the chest, but I was never really hurt. (I always said that as long as I didn't get seriously hurt, I wouldn't have missed it for the world).

After we crossed the Rhine, it was a matter of chasing the Germans each day until finally we were almost at the Czech border, and on May eighth that war ended. About ten thousand Germans came into our battalion area that day under surrender, and we took care of them as best we could. Some of them were hurt, and I worked for a few days with a German officer to get them settled in a building with bunks. The rest of the prisoners were corralled in a large field. Very shortly we received orders to move west, as the province we had taken was to be turned over to the Russians under terms of the Yalta agreement. I don't know what ever happened to those prisoners. If they were turned over to the Russians, they probably came to a bad end.

Then we received orders to ship back to the States for home leave en route to becoming part of the invasion for Japan. (It is interesting to recall that the embarkation camp near Le Havre was called Camp Lucky Strike. It was assumed that most of us smoked, which I did not, and in fact in the time that we were in the line we received a pack of cigarettes everyday, and there were cigarettes in the K-rations.)

The Japanese surrendered while I was on home leave. We reported back to our division in Fort Benning, Georgia, and the division was deactivated. I didn't have enough points to be discharged yet, and I was sent to Fort Devens where I was stationed for about six months. That gave me an opportunity to visit the Harvard Business School one day, where I learned that they had room for me in the next class. So in March, 1946, I was discharged from the Army, and in June I started the MBA program, and the rest of my life.

From a 2018 article for Emerson Hospital:

As a volunteer at Emerson, George Wiltsee transported patients to all corners of the hospital. "When I reached 2,000 hours of volunteer work, they took my picture," he says with a laugh. "Volunteering is worthwhile. I think a lot of Emerson, and it was good exercise." The couple has served as corporators since the 1980s.

When George's transport assignment took him to the sixth floor, he often took note of room 615, named for Mr. Wiltsee and his wife, Jean. The couple established a gift annuity with Emerson that helped refurbish room 615.

As a result, they receive guaranteed, lifetime income while supporting Emerson. "It's a smart thing to do," says Mr. Wiltsee about their planned gift.

"For example, a stock that has appreciated in value but is not producing any yield can be a lovely way to give to Emerson. You avoid paying a capital gains tax on the stock while you get an income tax deduction on the gift"

It was Mrs. Wiltsee who provided the original connection with Emerson. "I've always been interested in hospitals; medicine is fascinating to me," she says. "I know that Emerson is a very good hospital. It has a wonderful, welcoming attitude."

Once her husband began joining Mrs. Wiltsee at corporator meetings, his interest in the hospital grew, and he was soon nominated to become a corporator. "I think Emerson has fine management and fine doctors," he says. "In recent years, the hospital has increased its level of skill and capability."

Mr. Wiltsee retired in 1991, after having enjoyed two totally different careers. After 21 years with Procter & Gamble — most of them spent overseas — he took a position at his alma mater, Harvard Business School, where he helped run its prestigious Executive Education Programs. "My work included developing new programs for senior health care executives," he notes.

As residents of Newbury Court in Concord, the couple appreciate the proximity of Emerson. "They've got good folks over there at Emerson," says Mr. Wiltsee. "It's wonderful to have the hospital nearby and we are pleased to support it."

George was a member of the NEDA board before moving to Newbury Court. He and his beloved wife Jean were active members of our community, and George's voice and financial wisdom were crucial in helping Newbury Court navigate the expansion of its property in the early 2000s.

Helena Riney

Resident of Newbury Court & The Gardens | October 10, 2021

From her obituary:

Beloved mother, grandmother, and aunt. Helena (Saunders) Riney of Concord, Massachusetts, died peacefully on Sunday, October 10, 2021, at the age of 92 with family by her side.

For over 50 years she was the loving wife of William Edward Riney until his death in 2001.

Helena was born to Albert L. Saunders and Mary (Carroll) Saunders in North Andover, Massachusetts. The youngest of four children, she was a 1946 graduate of North Andover High School, attending Boston University for just one year. Financially unable to continue college, she attended the St. Elizabeth's School of Nursing, graduating with her R.N. degree in the spring of 1950. Following a brief time caring for newborns at Boston City Hospital, she wed William E. Riney (Bill) on November 25, 1950 and paused her nursing career.

Together, Helena and Bill raised seven children in Chelmsford, Massachusetts, in a busy and boisterous home. Helena was the calm in the storm, radiating serenity amid the chaos of a large family. She was smart, highly organized, and energetic, with incredible stamina. Seemingly effortlessly, she juggled all the moving parts of a nine-member household, sometimes augmented by an additional teenager in need of refuge. And through it all, she was unfailingly patient, loving, and fair.

Helena loved to learn and experience new things. She learned to play tennis at age 40, developing a new passion. At age 44 she returned to work in the health care field and for 12 years was responsible for Housekeeping and Infection Control at Tewksbury State Hospital. While working full time, Helena went back to college at night, earning her long-denied bachelor's degree in psychology from New England College at the age of 55. And at age 60, free of the constraints of working and raising children, she embarked on a global traveling spree spanning 20 years and six continents.

Anyone who knew Helena will remember her for her open and generous heart, her interest in each person with whom she spoke, the laughter and kindness in her green eyes, and her words of wisdom. She was a wonderful daughter, wife, mother, grandmother, and friend. She was very much loved by all and will be greatly missed by her children and grandchildren.

Riney and his wife Joyce of Kingston, NH; five loving grandchildren, Erin, Megan, and Patrick Riney and Benjamin and Samuel Miller; and four nieces and nephews.

Marion Thompson

Resident of Newbury Court | October 16, 2021

From her obituary:

Marion Josephine Thompson, of Newbury Court, Concord, died peacefully on October 16, 2021, following a brief illness.

She was born February 14, 1921 in Conneaut, Ohio, the daughter of Italian and Finnish parents. Her childhood years were spent in Fairview Park, Ohio, where she graduated from high school in 1939. During the Depression she worked several jobs in order to attend Dyke Business College at night. She was married in October of 1944, to Lieutenant Eugene Dietrich, in Biloxi, Mississippi. Shortly after their wedding, he was killed when his plane was shot down during the war.

Given her interest in exploring the world, as a young widow she chose to spend two years with the occupation forces in Japan under General MacArthur. She traveled widely in the Far East during those years. Eventually she joined the U.S. State Department as a secretary, with a first post in Paris. Next she landed in Ankara, Turkey, where she met her second husband, Malcolm Thompson, a foreign service diplomat. They were married in September 1957 on the island of Capri. Their daughter Cynthia was born in 1961. During nearly twenty years in Turkey, Marion and Malcolm traveled extensively in the Middle East. As a diplomat's wife, her duties included event planning and frequent entertaining of local dignitaries. She excelled at this, but she was most proud of her role as a teacher of English to local Turkish residents. After multiple posts abroad, Malcolm and Marion retired to Fairhaven Hill, Concord. They enjoyed their time together on Fairhaven Hill, while still indulging their passion for extensive travel in the U.S. and abroad.

Marion was an active member of the Unitarian Universalist Church and the Concord Garden Club, and was involved with organizations to support housing for the elderly. She lost her husband Malcolm in 1998. Her remaining years were spent as an enthusiastic resident of the Newbury Court community in Concord, Massachusetts; she was on both the Green Committee and the Newbury Court Staff Scholarship Fund Committee. Marion was known for her great interest in local, national, and world politics. She was an avid reader of both fiction and nonfiction, and loved a good discussion on any topic.

She is survived by her daughter, Cynthia Knauss of Concord, and grandsons Andrew and Christopher Knauss, both of Denver, Colorado. Marion will be deeply missed by her family, multiple nieces and nephews, and her friends.

Marion held the title of being the resident who lived at Newbury Court the longest. The pictures that follow show Marion's steady involvement over the years, including during the campus' many transitions to become what it is today.

Gertrude “Gertie” Cutler

Resident of Newbury Court & Rivercrest | October 22, 2021

From her obituary:

Gertrude Ford “Gertie” Cutler passed away on October 22, 2021 at the age of 90 in her hometown of Concord, Mass. She was a caring (but no-nonsense) mother, grandmother and friend.

She was born in Chicago in 1931 to Burdette and Lillian Ford. She spent her early years in Grosse Pointe, Michigan and then went on to graduate from Wellesley College in 1952 with a B.A. in Economics and was very athletic, competing in both field hockey and basketball. After graduation she embarked on a two month trip through Europe where she met her future husband Sam. They married in December 1952, settled in Concord, and were together for 54 years until his death in 2006.

Gertie was a trailblazer in every sense of the word. While raising four children, she started a successful local retail business with a friend, was the first woman president of the Concord Country Club, served on the board of the Middlesex Savings Bank and was the President of the Women’s Golf Association of Massachusetts. She loved travel and the outdoors and was completely at home camping, sailing, hiking or canoeing on Martha’s Vineyard or anywhere else. At one point, she and her late husband Sam Cutler led her children on a two-month camping expedition across all of Europe, exposing/dragging them to as much history and culture as possible. In her seventies, she took her grandson Sam on a 5-day wilderness canoe trip in Northern Minnesota. She was also an accomplished paddle tennis player and was known for “the Gertie” - an at-net drop shot on a severe angle. But her true passion was golf, which she continued to play until well into her 80s. She won the women’s championship at the Concord Country Club 15 times (5 more than her closest competitor – her daughter Sue) and was an expert on the Rules of Golf, serving as an on-course official at national USWGA tournaments.

She is survived by her four children – Mike Cutler (Laura), Andy Cutler (Liz), Marty Fuller (Whit) and Susie Beyer (Steve), her 10 grandchildren – Sam, Sasha and Max Cutler, Maggie and Ian Cutler, Curt and Madeline Fuller and Jessie, Angie and Tina Beyer, and her great grandson - Teddy Cutler.

Donald Stevenson

Resident of Newbury Court | October 31, 2021

From his obituary:

Donald T. Stevenson, of Concord, died at his home in Newbury Court on October 31, 2021. He died in his sleep, with all his children nearby. All those close to him agree he was the most honest, steady and trustworthy person they knew.

His wife of 73 years, Marjory, died in October 2019. They were both deeply loved by their 3 children and 4 grandchildren and 2 in-laws.

From Sarah Schultz, Fitness Coordinator at Newbury Court, upon Don's retirement from Fitness Training at Newbury Court:

Don Stevenson and his wife Marjorie moved into Newbury Court 2 days after it opened in December of 1994. We are indebted with gratitude for his 26 years of Volunteer service within the Fitness community here. Don and Marjorie had been involved in some strength training programs before their move and Don, the retired physicist, knew that it would be important for their quality of life to continue with their exercise routines. At that time there was no fitness director on staff and the fitness facility was not what it is today. Don found great pleasure in assisting his fellow residents with their own routines and educating them of the benefits of strength training. When the new Fitness Center came to be, he became a Certified Personal Trainer and spent many hours a week teaching the machines at Open Gym Class times as well as doing new resident orientation to the equipment at the center. Over the years he grew quite the following. His class participants were always greeted by his genuine kind smile as he put them through their paces. When asked about his time volunteering in the Fitness Center he stated with that big smile, "It was A LOT of fun!"

The Rev. Jared "Jerry" Rardin

Resident of Newbury Court | November 17, 2021

From his obituary:

Rev. Jared "Jerry" J Rardin, age 84, died on November 17, 2021, at his home in Concord, Massachusetts, from complications of Parkinson's Disease.

He was born in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1937, the oldest of four children of Ruth and Jed Rardin; after his father died and his mother remarried, he became the oldest of nine. In 1955 he graduated from Shaker Heights High School, where he had met Sue Lowry who would go on to become his wife of 62 years. He graduated from Williams College in 1959, and from Union Theological Seminary in 1963, before beginning his 44 years in Philadelphia. He spent five years as pastor of Grace Methodist Church in West Oak Lane. He built a lifelong relationship with the First United Methodist Church of Germantown, and joined the staff of the Samaritan Counseling Center. Though he was a peacemaker at heart, he did not shy away from a little "good trouble." He participated in the Turnaround Tuesday march in Selma, Alabama, and later joined a blockade of transport of napalm during the Vietnam war.

Throughout his career as pastor, pastoral counselor, father, and friend, he served as colleague, mentor, consultant, advisor, finder of harmony, punster, woodworker, and folk philosopher. Among his family's favorite quotes: "take your anxieties, and nudge them toward curiosity," and, "the Universe knows how to take care of you." As someone has said, he was able to "turn a maze into a labyrinth." He was widely beloved.

In 2007, he and Sue left Philadelphia and retired to Concord, where he resumed some of his pastoral counseling, consulting, and woodworking activities. In addition to Sue, he is survived by Jed and Laurie Rardin, Paul Rardin and Sandy Crump, Charley Rardin and Jane Sharp, and grandchildren Brynne, Marta, Gavin, Miles, and Sawyer.

From his family, which was read at our All Campus Memorial Service:

Fifteen years ago, Jerry Rardin and his wife Sue left their long-time home in Philadelphia to move to Newbury Court. Jerry left behind a career in parish ministry and pastoral counseling, and brought with him a new diagnosis of Parkinson’s Disease; but he and Sue quickly became part of the fabric of this community, helping to found-- and become the first leaders of -- Newbury Court’s Diversity and Inclusion Group.

For many of their new friends here, each interaction with Jerry, while peppered with puns and wordplay, wound up feeling more like a blessing, of which he was both celebrant, and beneficiary. As a craftsman and woodworker, Jerry worked in tangible metaphor, some examples of which you see right here in Duvall Chapel. The star of David that he made from white oak, which lives at the back of the chapel served as the crypt and foundation of the cathedral of his faith; this candle holder we use today for the memorial service he made to hold up the memory of each member of this Newbury community; and on the back of it he posted the quote “Death is a truth made more profound by the size of our wonder.” Now this candle shines for Jerry himself. Dad, we will always love you – but we are letting you go.

Jerry was an active and beloved part of the Newbury Court community. He was an easy and natural leader with a healthy sense of humor. Pictures from over the years show him in Newbury Court marketing materials, at our holiday and annual meeting gatherings, and, of course, our annual Halloween parties. His costumes never disappointed.

The Rev. Dr. Ha Kyung Cho-Kim

Resident of Newbury Court | December 15, 2021

From her obituary:

Ha Kyung Cho-Kim, passed peacefully into the loving arms of the Lord on December 15, 2021. She was born in Korea on September 22, 1938. She is preceded in death by her husband Kyu Ha Kim and mother Rev. Uhn Shin Kim. Ha Kyung is survived by her daughter, Mary Kim-Garrity of Boston, son Eugene Kim (Jodie Kim) of Pittsburgh, brother Sung Ho Chun (Hyerim), grandchildren: Tyler, Madison, Grant, Tanner and Luke, and nephews Daniel and Jonathon.

Ha Kyung had a passion for learning and helping those in need. In fact, she truly dedicated her life to those two things. She graduated from Ewha University School of Pharmacy in Korea. In 1961 she came to the United States. She earned a PhD in Pharmacology from Duquesne University in Pittsburgh. She was a clinical researcher at the University of Ohio, then she owned and operated her own pharmacy. She also was an Associate Research Professor at the University of Pittsburgh Medical School. Pittsburgh had become her home where she and late husband, Kyu Ha, raised their family.

Ha Kyung received a calling from the Lord and decided to attend Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. After receiving a Master's Degree of Divinity and a Doctorate Degree of Ministry, she was an ordained Minister serving the United Methodist Church. She served as an Associate Pastor at Dutihl Methodist Church in Cranberry, PA and as pastor at Christ Community Church in Mckees Rocks, PA. Later she would serve as a pastor in Bloomington, IN. Then she was invited to be the Resourcing Director of the New England Conference of the UMC. In 2004, she served the loving congregation of Leominster United Methodist Church as pastor until her retirement.

Growing up in Korea during the Korean War with her mother brought many challenges and hardships. These life experiences and lessons learned molded her as a strong person and inspired her to mentor others, especially women. She authored many spiritual books: God of Active Verbs A to Z, and Life's Journeys Toward Wholeness: Wellness, Transformation, Spiritual Maturity. She is also a kidney transplant recipient (special thanks to Judy Brideau) and a cancer survivor.

Cho-Kim shared her life story with Janet Johnson as part of the We Are All Immigrants project.

Hakyung Cho-Kim

I was born in Pyongyang, Korea, to Wan Cho (my father) and Uhn-Shin Kim (my mother). We moved to Shanghai, China, in the early 1940s where my father abandoned us when I was four years old. When my mother and I returned to Korea in 1945 we discovered that the country had been divided by the US and the USSR and our hometown was now the capital city of North Korea.

When the Communist government there began to confiscate personal property, my mother and I attempted to escape to South Korea in 1948. We were caught, but were able to buy our freedom using my mother's valuables. We were guided to the border and lived with our relatives in Seoul. I was able to attend elementary school where kind and compassionate teachers encouraged me. I especially enjoyed singing in the school choir.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER
Hakyung Cho-Kim and Uhn-Shin Kim in Seoul, Korea, 1961.

My mother remarried, but our family life changed drastically during the Korean War that began in 1950. Several members of my extended family died in a bombing by US planes. My mother was incarcerated by North Korean Intelligence, but later released just to have to flee again. This time we clung to the top of a freight car for nearly 200 miles to get to Daegu on Christmas Eve, 1950, where I was able to attend school.

In 1953 we were allowed to return to Seoul. The only housing available was a partially bombed house belonging to my aunt. I began school there as a ninth grader. After I completed high school, I attended Ewha Women's University in Seoul where I graduated with a BS in Pharmacy in 1961. At this point my English was pretty fluent since I started learning the language in high school and continued studying it in college by reading Time magazine.

My plan was to come to the US to obtain an advanced degree in pharmacy and to become a professor in Korea. However, there were many difficulties along the way. My fiancé, Kyuha Kim, had come to the US in March of 1961. He was a 5th degree black belt in judo and was the Korean National Judo Champion as well as an instructor with the Korean Air Force Academy. An American army captain saw a business opportunity in Kyuha's abilities and invited him to Oklahoma City to become a martial arts instructor.

I came to the US in November 1961 to join Kyuha. We were married in Oklahoma City in the chapel of Good Samaritan Hospital with a few of his martial arts students as guests and no family able to be present.

We started our life together in a studio apartment without a TV or a car and just my husband's modest income. Soon we realized that I was pregnant. With this happy news we were faced with the harsh reality that we had no health insurance. One of my husband's private students was the Oklahoma State Attorney General, but the only suggestion he had for us was that I should go back to Korea to have the child. Later, I found out that his actions were motivated by racism. He did not want our child to be born in this country and thus become a legal citizen of the USA.

I went back to Korea when I was eight months pregnant. My husband had to remain in Oklahoma City to fulfill his contract. My mother could barely recognize me when I landed, I was so swollen from the pregnancy. My daughter, Mary, was born on August 31, 1962. I nearly lost my life giving birth and my recovery was an amazing gift from God. My mother offered to raise the baby so I could return to the US to complete my pharmacy studies in Pittsburgh. Mary was able to join us when she was almost five years old. Our son, Eugene, was born in 1966.

I was fortunate to receive full scholarships for all of my college education. I reached my educational goal when I received a PhD in Pharmacology from the University of Pittsburgh on December 1969. I had already earned a BS in Pharmacy and an MS in Medicinal Chemistry from Pittsburgh's Duquesne University. I was able to do considerable cancer research on botanical plants and was the owner/pharmacist in pharmacies in Bethel Park and Pittsburgh, PA. Despite this professional success, I felt a strong call to the ministry, and in 1983 I entered the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. In 1986 I was the first Asian woman to be ordained by the Western Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church.

I have served churches as laity and clergy for more than 50 years - in Western Pennsylvania, Southern Indiana, and the New England Conference of the United Methodist Church. Since my retirement from parish ministry in 2010, I have published five devotional books, and I continue to be involved as Adult Formation Director at Sudbury Methodist Church. I moved to Newbury Court in March 2018.

When I entered the ministry, I found that the many challenges I faced in life helped me to focus on the spiritual disciplines and strive to live a life that is grounded in love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, generosity, faithfulness, gentleness, and self control.

Sally Cross

Resident of Newbury Court | February 2, 2022

From her obituary:

Sally Smith Cross died on February 2 in Concord, MA.

Born in 1929 in New York, the daughter of F. Harold Smith and Pauline V. Curtiss, she rapidly developed a broad affection for any person who traversed her path: her city and country neighbors, her classmates at The Chapin School and Vassar College (1951), and her colleagues in the administration of Sloan-Kettering Cancer Institute, which she joined after college. She rejoiced equally in summer hijinks with her family in Washingtonville, NY and the exhilaration of winters filled with classical music, art, and vibrant conversation.

In 1955, through amateur theatrical group The Blue Hill Troupe, she met the very tall and rather reserved banker William R. Cross, Jr. (1917-2002). The wedding of close friends two years later set a romance in motion. They married on June 14, 1958, and soon became parents to three children (Bill born 1959, Polly in 1960 and Fred in 1962). Her long-widowed mother-in-law Julia welcomed the growing family into the brick townhouse to which she had moved four decades earlier, when her husband Bill was a baby.

In 1973, their Bedford, NY weekend house became their principal home, complemented by a Chilmark, MA cottage whose simplicity sweetened Sally's Vineyard joy. For more than twenty years of Bill's battle with Parkinson's, Sally's marriage was her ministry and mission.

In 2006, four years after his death, she moved to Newbury Court in Concord, MA, where she flourished amid new friends and activities she embraced with enthusiasm. She took special delight in travel (best of all with grandchildren) that stretched minds and legs in equal measure. In her later years, an able cadre of loving, wise and faithful aides allowed her to live and die there in dignity, safety and comfort.

Her daughter Pauline C. Reeve and her husband Brock of Concord, and her two sons William R. Cross and his wife Ellen of Manchester, MA and Frederic N. Cross and his wife Jane of Easton, MD, give thanks for this care from all those who assisted her, especially Hilda Mbugua, Fortunate Mbabazi, and Margaret Marume who had been a big part of her life for the past year and more. As we mourn, we rejoice also in Sally's long life and devoted passel of pals near and far. Six beloved grandchildren also survive her: Nate Reeve and his wife Caroline of Houston; Adam Reeve of Cambridge; Hannah Reeve and her fiancé Nick Kowalski of New York; Gavin Cross of Shanghai; Ben Cross of Pittsburgh; and Charlie Cross of Charleston. Her grandson Sam Cross, her brother Robert I. Smith and her half-brother F. Harold Smith, Jr. predeceased her.

From her daughter Polly:

As people near and far have been sharing memories of our Mum over the past two weeks, there are themes that come up over and over – her graciousness, her intellect, her bravery, her enthusiasm, her determination – just to name a few. And what really comes shining through is her love. She cared about and was truly interested in each person in her life; she wanted to know your story, your passions, what made you unique and special. This was her hallmark – she simply loved other people, and her relationships inspired her and made her joyful, and gave her strength and stamina and courage even as her days became more difficult. It's clear that she was deeply loved in return, and she – and we – are forever grateful.

I want to say just a few words about this place, Newbury Court, where she lived for the past nearly-16 years. Before moving here, she had spent her adult years as a very active member of a busy community, with her life centered on her family – raising us three kids and, as soon as we were relatively independent, devotedly caring and advocating for our father during his 20 years of living with Parkinson's disease. In 2006, she was a relatively young widow who had never lived outside the state of New York. Moving here was the beginning of a brand new chapter for her – one in which in many ways she was able to be more independent than ever before. Although she missed our father terribly, she embraced her new life with gusto. She traveled the world with friends and grandchildren, she hosted a stream of houseguests on Martha's Vineyard during her summers there, she joined pretty much every committee and participated in every activity she could, and made amazing, dear friends among her fellow residents and the staff here. When she first arrived, she relished playing the younger sister to some of the more senior residents, and as the years went by she gracefully grew into the role of (as one of her friends put it) the "Grand Dame" of Newbury Court. She loved it here, because she loved the people in her life here.

Over the past several years, her body started to fail her, but her heart – both literally and metaphorically – never did. Her spirit remained so strong – right up to the end. She was determined, and clear-eyed, and full of love, and that was because of all the incredible people in her life.

You gave her joy, and a sense of purpose, and the tender care she needed to live fully, in comfort, dignity, and happiness.

With thanks and love,

Polly Cross Reeve

“A Story that Exemplifies the Kindness of Claire Pearmain,” written by Elisa Pearmain with help from Vicki Pearmain

My Mom went back to school when I was in college and got a Master of Social Work degree. She went to work at the Metropolitan State Hospital in Waltham, MA. Back in those days, the late 70's, people with mental health challenges were often involuntarily committed to those grim state hospital buildings with not much hope of getting out. My mom led groups and did individual therapy for the patients there.

Mom had one client named Joanne (name changed for confidentiality), of whom she was especially fond. Joanne had been forced by her family to give up a baby she had when she was young. In anger Joanne had tried to burn down the family house. She had been committed to Met. State for the rest of her days. Mom felt empathy for the sadness Joanne carried, and the loneliness of having no family.

Then in the late 80's, Governor Weld decided to close the state hospitals and mom's job became helping the residents to find housing and support out in the world. As an older woman with no one to help her, Mom took extra care in getting her settled in the community near by and made sure that she had a support system.

When the hospital closed soon after, my mom retired. But she did not stop caring about Joanne. She continued to check in with her every month or so. My sister Vicki remembers shopping for Joanne with my mom to bring her items of clothing and things that she couldn't get on her own.

Mom knew that Joanne was still grieving the loss of the baby that she had been forced to give up at birth. I don't know exactly how the idea came up, but mom helped Joanne to locate her son who was now an adult and living in California and helped to organize a meeting of the two.

Luckily it went well. This young man wanted to know why his mom had given him up and she wanted to see that he was doing well. They parted ways peacefully and kept up a relationship after that.

Mom continued to check in with Joanne as her health declined over the years. When Joanne had to go to a nursing home, Mom and Vicki went to her apartment and packed up the things that she would need there. She finally died about 15 years ago. Mom attended the small funeral.

While Joanne did not have the kind of life that we might call happy and fulfilled, the rest of her life was easier, and her heart was made much lighter by reuniting with her son.

That was just one example of the generosity and compassion that Mom, Claire Pearmain, had for those in need. We are grateful that she has passed that value on to her children.
